Person you admire most:

My father: "Our family of three moved to the United States four years ago, and since the first day of our arrival my father has been working long hours to support us. In the past four years he has perfectly mastered a foreign language. He has always been a perfect example of a strong compassionate person with goals set in stone."

What have you discovered about yourself during high school?

"I've discovered myself as an excellent public orator and defender of my personal views. I have an outgoing and giving personality. I've always been the person to whom friends and acquaintances would come for help or advice."

Pacific Power Mentor: Michelle Follette, Director of the Portland Customer Contact Center
